I found it difficult to create a layout on Figma. It's kind of difficult to use and there's definitely a lot to learn. That's why I think my layouts don't look as finished as they should look like. We could have added more colors in the color palette as it is our website and its function is very vibrant and a lot basically but our choice of colors doesn't do justice to the website. I designed the website with simplicity in mind so it's really easy to find your color palettes or create a new color palette due to the large vertical navigation bar. The heading also tells the user where he is at any point of time. To be honest though, the layout almost looks too simple and I could have made a more elaborate layout with more features.
