While at a glance, I like the way my two views look, I can't help but feel like for the library view, there may be a bit too much going on or too much to interact with. But I like the way song view looks as everything you may want to know is there, songs similar to the one you are currently listening to and the lyrics. I think I can improve on the overall layout and the spacing of each time. I feel like there is a better way to do the music control UI, but I am not sure at how to approach it as of currently. I think for the song view and the recommendations, I could add a way to hide the recommendations if there are people who prefer to hide it and see more lyrics. I also feel like I should play around with the color palette to see what works well and looks well.
